Asr Salah should be prayed at least 5 minutes before Maghrib Salah.

Rajab: One of four sacred months where sin is more serious and good deeds are more valued. The Prophet ﷺ called it "Rajab of Mudar," between Jumada and Sha'ban. Scholars see it as a good time to prepare for Ramadan through increased worship, not a month with fixed special acts.

Sha'ban: The month between Rajab and Ramadan, often neglected. The Prophet ﷺ fasted more in it than any month except Ramadan and said deeds are raised to Allah during this time. He loved his deeds be raised while fasting. It's a month to prepare for Ramadan through fasting, repentance, and worship.

Salah is makrooh from sunrise for 15 minutes, and for a few minutes around solar noon.

Asr Salah should be prayed at least 4 minutes before Maghrib Salah.

Ramadan: It is when Allah made fasting obligatory and revealed the Qur'an. It includes Laylat al-Qadr, better than a thousand months. Fasting and praying during Ramadan with faith and hope of reward forgives past sins. Gates of Paradise open, Hell's gates close, devils are chained, and Allah frees people from the Fire each night.

Asr Salah should be prayed at least 5 minutes before Maghrib Salah.

Shawwal: It begins after Ramadan with 'Eid al-Fitr. It is recommended to fast six days in this month following Ramadan, and those who do so will receive the reward as if they had fasted the entire year. These voluntary fasts also help compensate for any shortcomings in a person's Ramadan fast.

Dhu al-Qa'dah: One of the four sacred months. The Prophet ﷺ mentioned it by name with the other sacred months, so it is a time to avoid wrongdoing and respect the sanctity of the month. It is also a month in which the Prophet ﷺ performed his 'Umrahs (most of them were in Dhu al-Qa'dah), which shows its clear connection to the rites of 'Umrah and preparation for Hajj.

Asr Salah should be prayed at least 6 minutes before Maghrib Salah.

Dhul Hijjah: Its first ten days are the best for good deeds, as Allah swore by them. The Prophet ﷺ said no deeds are more loved by Allah. They include 'Arafah, during which fasting expiates two years of sins, and the Day of Sacrifice, the year's greatest day. These days involve Hajj, sacrifice, remembrance of Allah, and worship.

Muharram: It is the first of the four sacred months in the Hijri year. Allah commands no wrongdoing in these months due to increased sin severity and rewards for righteous deeds. The Prophet ﷺ called it “the month of Allah” and said that the best voluntary fasting after Ramadan is in Muharram, making fasting during this month highly encouraged.

Asr Salah should be prayed at least 5 minutes before Maghrib Salah.

Safar: One of the twelve Hijri months. In Jahiliyyah, people considered it unlucky and altered the calendar by moving sacred months. Islam rejected these superstitions, emphasising that months have no power to bring harm or benefit. The Prophet ﷺ said: "No 'adwa, no bad omens, and no Safar," meaning no inauspiciousness in this month.

Muslims should rely on Allah and avoid false practices linked to Safar.

Salah is makrooh from sunrise for 15 minutes, and for a few minutes around solar noon.

Asr Salah should be prayed at least 4 minutes before Maghrib Salah.

Rabi' Al-Awwal: This month has no special worship proven for specific days, but it is a month of key seerah events, including the Prophet's ﷺ birth and his departure from this world, and the Hijrah arrival is also reported in it. It is a good time to learn the seerah and increase steady worship.

Jumada al Ula: There is no specific virtuous act of worship for Jumada al-Awwal, but a significant historical event took place in this month: the Battle of Mu'tah in 8 AH, during which Zayd ibn Harithah, Ja'far ibn Abi Talib, and 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah رضي الله عنهم were martyred.
